They Were Second in Number and First in Valor on the Famous Battlefield.

Hence the State Should Take Pride in Perpetuating Their Deeds by Providing for a Commission to Locate Their Position.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.-The establishment of the Chickamanga and Chattanooga National Military Park has now reached a stage which should attract the attention of the veterans of Indiana and of all those interested in preserving the splended fighting history of her troops upon the renowned battle-fields about Chattanooga.

Of the sixteen States which had troops in these battles the organizations from Indiana were second in number at Chickamauga, ranking there next after Ohio. and at Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge next after Ohio and Illinois. Thirtyseven Indiana organizations, namely, twenty-six regiments of infantry, three of cavalry and eight batteries, were most creditably engaged in the stubborn and most courageous fighting of this field. And this engagement is now proved to have been the bloodiest, in proportion to those engaged and the duration of their fighting. of any field of modern times, either in this country or in Europe.

The advanced condition of the work already performed in the establishment of this extensive park, as well as its great proportions, are as yet but little understood by the country. The government now owns over nine square miles of the Chickamanga field, embracing nearly all its fighting ground, Many miles excellent roads have already been constructed and a large proportion of the remaining roads upon the field have been graded and are now ready for surfacing. The underbrush has been removed from the greater part of the fighting lines so as to enable those visiting the ground to readily locate their positions in the battle. Contracts have been awarded for monuments for all the regular regiments and batteries. The Wilder brigade, one of the most noted Indiana organizations, has begun the erection of a monument to mark one of its positions, which is to be 110 feet high, and is altogether the most imposing monument yet erected upon any battlefield in the country. The texts of historical tablets for army, corps and division positions for both the Union and confederate armies have been prepared and are ready for casting. These will be of metal, 4x3 feet in surface dimensions, with raised letters, and full historical text illustrating the movements at the points where they are to be located. WHAT IS WANTED.

This brings the historical work up to the point where the co-operation of the States desiring to perpetuate the histories of their regiments is needed. The next series of tablets will include the movements of brigades and contain the names each regiment and battery, with their commanders, and full text setting ber of States, both at the North and the South, are now moving in this matter of appointing commissions to aid in ascercaining these regimental and battery locations. What is wanted from each State is the appointment of a commission such as that which has been at work for the State of Ohio during the past year, and which has now completed the location of Ohio troops upon the Chickamauga field. This is a commission of men who participated in the battle, and who serve without pay. The only appropriation made by the State was one sufficient to detray the expenses of the commission and representatives of the State organizations to the field. The positions thus ascertained have been marked by the engineers of the national commission and recorded in their surveys, and will be permanently fixed upon the maps of the park. Such ascertaining of positions will enable the national commission to incorporate in their historical tablets the full fighting history of the troops of the State. The question of monuments can go until a later day. but the essential work to the preservation of the State history and its presentation upon the tablets to be erected throughout the field will have been secured wifen the representatives of regiments and batteries, through their various State commissions, locate their positions upon the field.

A very small appropriation will enable the State of Indiana to do all that is needed for its veterans and all that State pride calls for in this matter. Undoubtedly a commission of five men can be readily secured by the Governor from those who renpered notable service and brought honor to their State at Chickamanga. The sum of $1,000 will cover all needed expenses up to the point where the national commission can take up the work and permanently mark and record all Indiana positions It will revive State pride to call attention to the part which Indiana played in that great battle, and in those of Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge, which followed it. Among the division commanders Gen. Joseph J. Reynolds bore a most distingulshed part, as did the division of Gen. Jeff C. Davis, an Indiana soldier of the first standing. One-third of the brigade comcommanders were indiana men, and onetifth of the total number of organizations engaged in the battle were from that State. As already stated, the division commanders were Generals Reynolds and Davis. The brigade commanders were Col. Benjamin F. Seribner, Col. John T. Wilder, Col. Etward A. King, Col. Milton S. Robinson, Gen. August Willick, Col. Joseph B. Dodge, Col. Philemon P. Baldwin, Col. George P. Buell, Gen. Charles Cruft, Col. William Grose, Col. A. O. Miller and Col. George F. Dick. Of these Colonel King and Colonel Baldwin were killed.

INDIANA'S REGIMENTS.

The infantry regiments were the Thirtyeighth, Lieut,-Col. Daniel F. Griffin; the Forty-second, Lieut.-Col. William T. B. MeIntire; the Eighty-eighth, Col. George Humphrey; the Thirty-seventh, Lieut.-Col. William D. Ward; the Eighty-second, Col. Morton C. Hunter; the Tenth, Col. William B. Carroll, and after his death Lieut .- Col. M. B. Taylor; the Seventy-fourth, Col. Charles W. Chapman, and after he was disabled Liet.-Col. Myron Baker; the Eighty-seventh, Coi. Newell Gleason; the Seventeenth, Maj. William T. Jones; the Seventy-second, Col. Abram O. Miller, of Wilder's brigade, and during a part of the time in command of it; the Sixty-eighth, Capt. Harvey Espey; the Seventy-fifth, Col. Milton S. Robinson, and when he succeeded to the command of the brigade upon the death of Colonel King Lieut, -Col. William O'Brien; the One-hundred-and-first. Lieut.-Col. Thomas Doan: the Twenty-second, Col. Michael Gooding; the Eightyfirst Capt. Nevil B. Boone and Maj. E. Calloway: the Thirtysecond, Lieut.-Col. Frank Erdelmeyer; Thirty-ninth, Thomas J. Harthe Twenty-ninth, Lieut.-col. D. M. Dunn; the Thirtieth, Lieut.-Col. Orrin D. Hurd; the Sixth, Lieut.-Col. H. Tripp and Maj. Calvin D. Campbell; the Fifty-eighth, Lieut.-Col. James T. Embree. Holding the post at Chattanooga, under General Wagner, were the Fifteenth, Col.

Vanilla Lemon | Of great strength-Orange Economy in their use. Rose, etc. Flavor as delicately and deliciously as the fresh fruit

G. A. Wood; the Fortieth, Col. John W. Blake; the Fifty-seventh, Lieut.-Col. Geo. W. Lennard. Going back to those in the battle were the Thirty-first, Coi. John T. Smith; the Ninth, Col. I. C. B. Suman; the Seventy-ninth, Col. Frederick Knefler; the Forty-fourth, Lieut.-Col. S. C. Aldrich; the Eighty-sixth, Maj. Jacob C. Dick, and the Thirty-fifth, Maj. John P. Dufficy. The cavalry regiments were the Second, Maj. Joseph B. Presdee; the Fourth, Lient.-Col. John T. Deweese, and the Third Bat-talion, Lieut.-Col. Robert Klein.

The fighting batteries of Indiana artillery in the field were the Fourth, Lieut. David Flausburg and Lieut. Henry J. Willits; the Eighteenth, Capt. Eli Lilly: the Nineteenth. Capt. S. J. Harris and Lieut. R. G. Lackey; the Twenty-first, Capt. Wm. W. Andrew; the Fifth, Capt. Peter Simonson; the Eleventh, Capt. Arnold Suter-meister; the Eighth, Capt. George Estep; the Tenth, Lieut. Wm. A. Naylor; the Seventh, Capt. George R. Swallow.

In addition to these there were engaged under General Sherman, at Missionary Ridge, the Eighty-third Indiana, Col. Benjamin J. Spooner; the Twelfth, Col. Renben Williams; the One-hundredth, Lient.-Col. Albert Heath; the Ninety-seventh, Col. R. F. Catterson: the Ninety-ninth, Col. Alexander Fowler; the Forty-eighth, Lieut... Col. E. J. Wood, and the Fifty-ninth, Capt. W. H. Welman.

At every point of the hottest and most successful fighting on the fields of Chickamauga and Missionary Ridge, and in the storming of Lookout mountain these troops of Indiana bore most conspicuous and honorable part. It is certainly a small thing which the national commission now asks of the State of Indiana by way of honoring men who there achieved so much for their State and Nation. A State which stood second in the number of its organizations upon such memorable fields should not hesitate to preserve the history of its soldiers' magnificent fighting for the generations to come,

JIM CORBETT'S DANDER UP

The Champion Is Tired Being Barked at by Numerous Pugilistic Fistes,

And Has Issued a Challenge to Fight Any One Next Fall for a Purse, Mitchell or Jackson Preferred-His Statement.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Champion James J. Corbett, who is in this city with his theatrical combination, has been rather severely criticised during the past few months for his course in insisting on a year's rest before taking on another match for the world's championship. Prominent among his assailants have been Pat Sheedy and the backers of several pugilists of prominence who are seeking championship honors. Corbett to-day gave out an interview, in which he defends his position, and which he concludes with a sweeping challenge to fight any one-Mitchell or Jackson preferred-the fight to take place next fall for a purse. The statement, which is signed "James J. Corbett, champion of the world," discusses a recent article by Pat Sheedy, and is in part as follows:

"I believe one of Mr. Sheedy's statements was that John L. Sullivan would annihilate me with one blow and that I would not last three rounds. In his letter the distinguished Mr. Sheedy alludes to Sullivan and Mitchell as 'two easy marks,' I have never met nor sought contests with 'easy marks.' If I were in the habit of doing so I might accept the challenges of some of the wouldbe champions who are now chasing me. My record shows that I have successfully battled with men like Jack Barke, Jake Kilrain, Joe Choynski, Dominick McCaffrey, Peter Jackson and John L. Sullivan. Mr. Sheedy did not think Mr. Sullivan was an 'easy mark' six months ago, when he made the prediction alluded to above, and sprely the boxers that I have mentioned are not to be so rated.'

In reply to Sheedy's argument against the practice of fighting for large purses,

"If champion pugilists are going to contest for $10,000 purses and stakes all told as the distinguished Mr. Sheedy suggests. who then is going to take the money that they will draw. According to figures published the night that Sullivan and I fought the receipts were nearly $90,000; the purse was $25,000, and the club cleared close to $45,000 on the battle. The profits of the Myer-McAnliffe contest were $30,000; Dixon and Skelly, $20,000; Maher and Fitzsimmons, $30,000. The Coney Island Club admits that it cleared $25,000 with the Dixon-Johnson match; $25,000 with Choynaki and Godfrey, and $25,000 with Goddard. The fact that the Crescent Club, of New Orleans, gives Fitzsimmons and Hall a myself a $55,000 purse, proves that at present there are fortunes being made by athletic clubs which are arranging boxing contests between champions. Who is this money to go to if not to the pugilists!"

Corbett asserts in justification of his course in asking one year's rest between his battles that Sullivan, although he held the championship twelve years, only fought four men-Ryan, Mitchell, Kilrain and Corbett-an average of one battle every three years. In regard to the proposed matches he said: "Until Goddard wins the championship of Australia I will have nothing to do with bim. I am champion of the world. and I claim the right to say whom I shall meet. I am prepared to fight the champion of Eugland or Australia. I prefer Charley Mitchell, the acknowledged champion boyer of England, and an undefeated man. After his arrival, which will be soon, I will allow him a certain period to show that he means business. In case of his failure to do so, Peter Jackson is my next choice, and, in case he does not come up to the scratch. I will meet any man in the world, barring no color or nationality, the fight to take place in the fail."

TARRED AND FEATHERED.

The Husband of Amelie Rives-Chanler Assists in Ridding the Community of an Imposter.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan. 22. - The town of Cobham, near here, has just been rid of the society of a man claiming to be an English gentleman of good family, but who is alleged to be a rank imposter, by the vigorous action of John Armstrong Chanler, husband of Amelie Rives-Chanler. The man was tarred and feathered in a courteous but effective fashion by Mr. Chanler and a party of friends, and was then escorted to the nearest railroad station and started toward Canada. Mr. Chanler, it is understood, does not deny his share in the affair, and claims that he merely took the quietest and most effective way of ridding the community of a fellow who, after being exposed as an imposter, threatened to remain in town and make a nuisance of himself at the expense of those who had befriended him. The victim, it is alleged. suffered nothing but humiliation and was sent away with funds and good advice.

SENATOR M'DONALD'S WILL

Case That Promises to Become Historic in the Annals of Indiana Law Courts.

Compromise Very Nearly Accomplished Last Week-What the Depositions Contain-Begins To-Day at Noblesvi le.

A great legal battle, and one which promises to drag its sensational length through many tedious days of court, opens at Notlesville this morning. Indiana people are generally familiar with the story of the McDonald will. Senator McDonald was laid to rest, and his followers pursued the routine of life, hardly prepared for the startling charges that quickly came from one side of a house divided against itself. The story is almost tragically interesting. The will of the late Senator was duly probated. In its pages, neatly type-written and legally executed, the dead had provided for his surviving widow a princely dower-the control of the bulk of his fortune in fee. The papers that gave the handsome legacy to Mrs. McDonald had been prepared in the late husband's office, and they bore the attests and signatures of Alpheus H. Snow, law partner, and of Parke Daniels, also connected with the firm. In the space allotted for it was the familiar signature of Joseph E. McDonald. This was filed for probate by Mr. Snow, who attested the genuineness of the signature. When the first rumblings of the storm that shook the very foundations of the Mo-Donald family were heard Malcolm Mc-Donald, the son, and his niece and nephew, the children of Ezekiel McDonald, entered a protest against the final disposition of the will. The charge was made in their complaint that from the document had been extracted a page of manuscript and in its place another had been substituted. The legal fight was precipitated by the heirs with the preliminary charge that the original and gennine page of manu-script, could it be brought to light, would reveal the fact that a "bequest for life" and not "in fee," as the alleged substituted page read, had been the intended provision of the deceased for his wife. Then the various phases in the rapidly unfolding drama began to appear. Mrs. McDonald produced a document in the form of a will, a carbon duplicate and exact fac simile of the paper which it was averred had been tampered with. The first petition on the part of the contesting heirs was a double complaint, first, that the genuine will had been conveniently "fixed." and, second, that Mrs. Mc-Donald had exerted an undue influence over her husband in procuring the will. The attorneys for the defense filed a petition to the court that the plaintiffs be in-verdict. Pending the amendment of the complaint a line of romance was added to the already sensational incidents relative to the contest by the strange vision which a lady the former governess to the McDonald home, announced had appeared to The woman was visited by dream remarkable for its acute vividness. She saw the law office of Senator McDonald. Inside the apartment were two figures -not shadowy phantoms, but distinct in form and face. One of these persons was the beautiful wife of the man whose property is in litigation; the other was his private secretary and stenographer, Arthur Hutchins. These two people were at work comparing type-written sheets of paper. Then the dream faded. The dreamer came to this city a few weeks later and was taken to the office of McDonald & Butler. There was something familiar about the place and her mind reverted back to the sleeping fancies of a few weeks before. All was as she had pictured it. At the insane hospital the governess was permitted to look upon another scene and in the pale, emaciated figure of Hutchins she claimed to recognize the stenographer of her dream.

tor McDonald was a forgery on its face, as In preparing for the trial the opinions of many attorneys who knew the dead in hife have been solicited and their depositions taken recently. These will be presented to-day. Edward Daniels, brother of Parke Daniels, who was present and attested the will, testifies in his deposition that the signature is genuine. John M. Butler declined to hazard an opinion and refused in his deposition to say whether the signature is genuine or not. Maurice Butler testifies forged. A. L. Mason, long in the office. and Judge A. L. During the past ten days the friends of all the parties to the unfortuate condition of affairs have succeeded in bringing about an amicable understanding between the litigants which was about to result in a compromise. Several propositions were submitted, and finally an offer was arrived at which, by a slight concession on the part of those interested, would have concluded matters so far as the courts are concerned. The proposition, as made, was signed by Mrs. McDonald and her attorneys, Miss Jessie McDonald and the plaintiff's attorneys. One of the plaintiffs gdeclined to sign it, and submitted another proposition, which Mrs. McDonald declined to consider, and the cause celebre goes into court this morning.

PERSONAL AND SOCIETY.

The Misses Fulmer gave a sleighing party Friday evening in honor of Miss Attie Hubbard, of Lafayette. Mr. George W. Toms, of St. Louis, father of Mrs. Alexander Stewart, died unexpectedly Saturday night.

Miss Cora Daggett will leave this morning for New York to study the harp with the noted instructor, Cheshire.

Prof. F. W. Kraft, instructor of vocal music at DePauw School of Music, has been engaged as director of the Second Presbyterian Church choir. The quartet consists of Mrs. Lottie Adam Raschig, soprano; Miss Helen Walker, alto: Mr. Edward Harmon, tenor, and Mr. Maurice Butler, and there are about forty members in chorus.

A WOMAN MADE PRESIDENT

Mrs. A. R. Baker Put at the Head of the Big Baker-Randolph Printing House.

Indianapolis Ahead of Cincinnati in the Wholesale Grocery Trade-Talk of a Beef-Packing House-Industrial Notes.

It is not often that a woman comparatively young finds herself at the head of a great industry, but such is the position in which Mrs. A. R. Baker, widow of the late head of the Baker-Randolph Lithograph and Engraving Company, finds herself. Her husband, while still a young man, built this establishment up from small beginnings until it grew to be one of the largest concerns of the kind in the West, with a branch house in Chicago nearly, if not quite, as large as that at home.

Such was Mr. Baker's confidence in the business capacity of his wife that upon his death, recently, he left all his property in her hands, and made her executrix of the estate. At the annual meeting of the company last week, she was elected president, and Fletcher Randolph secretary. Her future plans are not determined as yet, but for the present she will manage the business, though it is probable that, in the near future, there will be a complete reorganization of the company.

Forging Ahead of Cincinnati. But few persons are aware of the fact, yet it is true, that Indianapolis now leads Cincinnati as a wholesale grocery .narket. Ten or fifteen years ago all over the West Cincinnati was credited with having the largest and most successful list of wholesale grocers. Indianapolis now has one house which carries treble the stock of any Cincinnati house, another which carries double the stock, five which carry as much as either of the Cincinnati houses, and four which drop but little behind the best that Cincinnati has. A traveling salesman representing an Eastern match-manufacturing establishment states that in Cincinnati it is quite difficult to sell matches enough to make up a car-load at one shipment. while at Indianapolis the other day he secured a car-load shipment by visiting but three houses, and traveling salesmen of other classes of trade look upon Indianapolis as being one of their best points to sell goods on a large scale. It is stated that more commission men representing Eastern and Western establishments are located in Indianapolis and doing well than at Cincinnati, and through such mediums wholesale grocers now purchase a large percentage of their goods.

Good Business Opening. A company of business and railroad men were in conference on Saturday regarding investments which promise good returns. One of the number suggested that the best opening he knew of at Indianapolis was the establishment of a packing-house, to kill cattle and furnish dressed meats for this market and to ship to Eastern markets. Indianapolis had, with its three large packing-houses, which kill hogs summer and winter, become an important hog market, and there was no reason why it should not become as noted as a dressed-meats market. The vice-president of one of the roads was very favorably impressed with the suggestion, and stated that he would not only take stock in such an enterprise, but would see that rates to bring cattle in here and to ship dressed meats East placed Indianapolison an equal footing with St. Louis and Chicago for carrying on this branch of business. The roads could make much more out of hauling dressed meats than live stock, as the cars could be loaded in both directions. Dressed-meat cars can be used to bring merchandise west in.

New Factory to Be Built. The Adamant Plaster Company, of which Martin Ohr is general manager, has made arrangements for the erection of a threestory building, 100 feet long by 50 wide, on Phipps street, adjoining the Jeffersonville, Madison & Indianapolis railroad tracks, and other buildings, such as an engine and boiler-house, and one for an office. This company has purchased the right to manufacture this plaster for the State of Indiana. Manufacturers Taken Care Of.

The Manufacturers' Natural-gas Company now has over forty manufactories on its line, and is daily adding new ones. The Parry Manufacturing Company was added to the list last week. The laying of this line was very fortunate for the manufacturers, as the other lines could not have taken care of them this winter.

Grain | Store. Indianapolis elevators on Saturday contained 389,052 bushels of wheat, against 13,359 bushels the corresponding date 1892 206,331 bushels of corn, against 21,000 last year: 146,399 bushels of oats, against 174,905 last year, and 9,500 bushels of rye, against 16,874 bushels in 1892.

Car-Works Sold.

It is stated that the controlling stock of the Indiana Car and Foundry Company has passed into new hands. Olaf Olsen and others, who were the largest stockholders in the new reorganization, have disposed of their holding of stock.

Industrial Notes. E. C. Atkins & Co. are so pressed with orders that in the cross-cut saw department a night as well as a day force is employed.

Chandler & Taylor last week shipped complete steam plants, including engines and boilers, to Mexico, Cuba and also to Central America.

Last week the new cerealine mills shut down, so severe was the weather and so much trouble experienced in getting an ample supply of water. Harry Atkins has been appointed superintendent of the Atkins saw-works, vice George Atkins, deceased, who had held that position for many years. A. B. Gates & Co. have just put in two additional cylinder coffee roasters, and now have a battery of six roasters which are kept in operation day and night. The Indianapolis glue-works have their new boilers in position and general improvements complete and are in shape to manufacture 800,000 pounds of glue a year. The Dugdale Can Company is pushing work, employing 130 persons. Those they now manufacture are stored in their ware-

I use, which has a capacity to hold 4,500,-

Out cans. The Enterprise boiler-works is building two immense iron tanks for Maus's brewery and a large tank for Kingan & Co. The latter will have 3,600 gallons capacity, and will be used in purifying lard.

The manufacturers of furniture stock in the rough report the outlook for their business to be improving. In years past Indianapolis has been quite noted for shipping such material largely for export This is a busy time with T. E. Potter, manufacturer of straw goods for ladies and misses. This establishment gives employment to sixty girls, and has built up an immense trade over the Northwest and in the central States.

The Indianapolis Stove Company is crowded with orders and Mr. Bennett states that the outlook for continued good business is very flattering. For the last year the works have given employment to more men than ever before and have shut down

Gillette Brothers, manufacturers of wagon material, are very busy, employing a larger number of men than ever before. Company, confessedly the best of its kind, | Their trade is extending. Last week they shipped a car-load of wagon material to Austin, Tex., and on the same day a carload to Bangor, Me., and another to Duluth, Comstock & Coonse, pump manufacturers, report their business unusually good for midwinter. They have a large trade in the Northwest, in Ohio and Michigan. They have just added to their business several lines of buggies from the leading manufactories of the country, and expect to soon put up a large building to carry on the business more extensively.

The Capital City Cloth Casket Company has removed its city office to the manufac-tory on the Belt road. This company has sold all its product for the next three years to a syndicate of undertakers. Although a new concern the work they turn out has placed them at the head or manufacturers of this class of goods. Fifteen of the men employed are experts as designers and man-

The Indianapolis Chain and Stamping Company, makers of cycle chains, have a number more of machines in position, and now have capacity to turn out nearly a mile of cycle chain a day. This establishment manufactures superior chain, and is troubled to keep up with its orders, every bicycle and cycle manufactory in this country purchasing chain from them. The works give employment to thirty women and thirty-three men.

The Indianapolis Bolt and Machine-works Company has made a decided success of the elevator manufactured by that establishment, and the number of men in this branch of the works has been considerably by out-of-town parties last week, two going to Columbus, Ind., one to Frankfort, another to Terre Haute. One of those going to Columbus is the largest yet built, and goes to W. W. Mooney & Co.

John R. Elder, of this city, president of the Cisy Shingle Company, has prepared a paper on burned clay as a rooting material, which will be read on Thursday by him before the National Brick-makers' Association of the United States of America, which convenes in Louisville next week. The paper will likely attract a good deal of attention, as many statistics of interest will be shown on a more comprehensive scale than this subject has before been treated.

The manufacturers of butterine and oleomargarine are much troubled to get tallow in sufficient quantities to meet their needs. In some cases they are paying as high as 8 cents per pound for the article, which ordinarily will bring but 3 cents. The butchers appreciate this rise in the tallow market more than others. There is a great scramble between the manufacturers of butterine to get the article. Agents are sent out, and are authorized to get the tallow at some price when they come across a good hold-

Secretary Johnson and the Vigo County Jail. To the Editor of the Indianapolis Journal: The editorial criticism of Secretary Johnson, of the State Board of Charities, by the Journal, was welcome to Terre Haute readers, who had become acquainted with the inclination of this official to condone the shortcomings of Democratic officials. In October last Secretary Johnson, in company with ex-Judge Mack and Mr. W. C. Ball, editor of the Terre Haute Gazette, made an unannonneed visit to the Vigo county jail. Mr. Johnson made notes of what he learned, all of which was a severe reflection on the jail management and police affairs. His report was published, and the sheriff being a Democrat and a candidate for reelection, there was consternat n among local campaign managers. The sheriff went to Indianapolis, and with pressure brought to stultified himself Johnson by writing an open letter to the inculpated official highly eulogizing his conduct as sheriff. The facts reported were not denied; they could not be, and perhaps they were never intended to have reached the public, as Secretary Johnson declared that the report was not intended for publication, especially during the campaign, as if they were not of the very best service to the people at such time. The visit to the jail had the effect of immediate action in correcting the abuses for the time being, which action in itself was a confession of all that was charged. Mr. Johnson later sought to excuse the violation of law just as he is now doing in the matter of the scandal at the Jeffersonville penitentiary.

TERRE HAUTE, Jan. 16.

The above was submitted to Mr. Johnson. and concerning the charge he said: "The facts in my report, which was prematurely published during my absence from the office and without my knowledge, were true, and I have not retracted one of them. Hence I do not see how I could have 'stultified myself' by writing a letter to Sheriff Stout exonerating him from blame which I later found did not properly attach to him. The fault was in having a boy who was detained as a witness, where he mingled with old and hardened criminals. and in keeping men without commitment papers. In this latter case, the blame belongs to the prosecuting attorney, who delayed the matter from day to day. As to the boy, it was a serious matter, but so different from the sheriff's usual custom as not to warrant condemnation of an otherwise careful officer. There is, however, no error of fact in any statement in the first report, and the annual report of the board restates the condition of the Vigo county

He listened to the rattling of the gavel, the echoes of "Mr. Speaker" and the rattle of oratorical musketry with astonishment so great that he became silent. In a few minutes he rose and made for the door.

"Where are you going?" asked his friend. "I'm going," he said with deliberate emphasis, "I'm going back to Chicago. I'm going back to the Board of Trade, where it's quiet."

Both Had Eczema In its Worst Form

After Physicians Failed, Hood's Sarsaparilla Perfectly Cured.

Great mental agony is endured by parents who see their children suffering from diseases caused by impure blood, and for which there seems no cure. This is turned to joy when Hood's Sarsaparilla is resorted to, for it expels the foul humors from the blood, and restores the diseased skin to fresh, healthy brightness. Read the following from grateful parents: "To C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass .:

"We think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most valuable medicine on the market for blood and skin diseases. Our two children suffered terribly with the Worst Form of Eczema for two years. We had three physicians in that time, but neither of them succeeded in curing them or even in giving them a little relief. At last we tried Hood's Sarsaparilla and in a month both children were per-fectly cured. We recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as a standard family medicine, and would not be without it." MR. and MRS. M. M. SOLLER, 1412 2nd Avenue, Altoona, Pa.
